LORD BYNG SENT MANY PRESENTS TO HOBBEMA RESERVE

Chief Me-Cu-Puck-Ewan in the person of Barney Cooper, well known Mounted Police veteran of this city, acting on the instructions of Chief Buffalo Head (Lord Byng), left for Hobbema today bearing good news and many presents to the Cree Indians at that point. Chief Buffalo Head has expressed his intention of having silver medals made in London for presentation to the four chiefs on the reserve and it was with the object of bearing these glad tidings that Chief Me-Cu-Puck-Ewan left this morning. It was during his recent visit to Edmonton that Lord Byng was invested with his chiefship in the tribe.

In recognition of the prominent part they took in the reception to the governor general the Indians will be the recipients of a number of presents from Edmonton citizens. Among the gifts Mr. Cooper took with him were knives, hatchets, candles, jewelry, toys, cod liver oil smokes, talcum powder and numerous other articles dear to the heart of the native.—Journal.

MINERS CAUGHT IN ARGONAUT ARE ALL DEAD

Jackson, Cal., Sept. 18.—Forty-seven corpses greeted the rescuers who have fought their way by slow degrees into the 4000 foot level of the Argonaut gold mine here tonight, 22 days after an explosion in the upper workings of the mine imprisoned 47 miners in their subterranean workshops. Notes which formed a crude diary of the surviving hours showed that the men all died within five or six hours after the explosion of August 27 last, victims of the poisonous fumes which flooded the lower workings from the fire which raged above their heads and which still is burning. Against these clouds of carbon dioxide gas the prisoners had flung crude bulkheads of timbers and stones, stripping themselves of clothing to stop the interstices through which the foul air seeked and finally choked them.

SUPREME CRIMINAL COURT SITTINGS

The following is a list of cases to be tried at the Supreme Criminal Court sittings to be held at Wetaskiwin, commencing on Monday, September 25th, at ten a.m., before the Honorable Mr. Justice McCarthy:

Rex vs Leo. Riske—one of seduction and attempted abortion.

Rex vs John Sturtz—Charge of subornation of perjury.

Rex. vs Lawrence Gale— charge of indecent assault.

Rex. vs Robert Bean—Charge of theft of grain.

AUTO ACCIDENT

A very serious and what might have easily proved a fatal auto accident, occurred at Lucas' crossing, four miles north of the city, early Wednesday morning. While a car was proceeding north, the driver missed the road and went straight ahead on the old path, but apparently he noticed his mistake a few moments afterwards, and turned the car into the bank, thus preventing it from dropping into the river bed. The auto capsized, and the three occupants were thrown out without any of them being seriously injured. The car is almost a total wreck. Upon investigation it was found that the occupants of the car were residents of the Sylvan Lake district, and were under the influence of liquor. How they escaped without being hurt is almost a miracle.

WARNING

On several occasions boys and girls have been playing around the water tank, west of the city, and on Sunday last, a number of them climbed to the railing at the base of the tank, and were in a very dangerous position, as had they made a mis-step or fallen to the ground there is little doubt but that they would have been killed. A word of warning should be sufficient to put a stop to this dangerous practice.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The next meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in the Presbyterian church on Saturday, September 30th. Business meeting will be held at 7 p.m., and after the business is disposed of, an attractive program will be given, consisting of views of Canada, taken by the C.P.R., from the city of Quebec, to Alaska. Silver collection. Everybody cordially invited.

F. Collicutt of Crossfield, Alberta, won the grand, the senior and the junior championships for Hereford cows at the fair in New Westminster. The Canada Land and Irrigation company, Medicine Hat, and Hoover & Sons, of Bittern Lake, were among the chief winners in the sheep competitions.

NEW POUNDKEEPER AND SCAVENGER

The city council has made arrangements with Johnson Gibson to perform the duties of poundkeeper and city scavenger, his appointment dating from September 18th. Mr. Gibson has leased the Cowan barn on Stanley street, where the pound will be located.

Hail Insurance Board Fixes Assessment Rate at 5 P.C.

At the meeting of the Hail Insurance Board of Alberta, held on Friday in Calgary, the rate of assessment for hail insurance for 1922 was fixed at five per cent.

The cooperative plan of protection against hail loss, as offered under the Municipal Hail Insurance Act, is evidently meeting with the approval of the farmers of the province. The saving to them in premiums, covering the four years the act has been in operation, amounts to almost one and a half million dollars, and in addition to this a reserve of approximately a half million dollars has been established.

The volume of insurance written in 1922 was not quite as great as that of previous years, due to adverse crop conditions and low grain prices and doubtless also, to the higher rate the board found it necessary to set in 1921. But the final results, borne out by the figures quoted, prove beyond a doubt that the co-operative system, embodied in the Municipal Hail Insurance plan, well deserves the slogan: "The cheapest safe insurance."

U. F. A.

The next meeting of the Gwynne U.F.W.A. will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Maxwell on the first Saturday in October, in the evening. As it is to be a special meeting of the U.F.W.A., we would like all members to be present if possible.

Vice-Regal Party Loyally Welcomed In Wetaskiwin

Addresses of Welcome Read by Montgomery to which His Excellency Makes a Fitting Reply. Three Returned Veterans Decorated with Military Medals. School Girl presented with Governor General's Medal. Veterans and Boy Scouts Inspected. Bouquets presented to Ladies. Hospital Inspected and Formally Opened by His Excellency. Party Driven through Country and Farm Homes Visited.

The citizens of Wetaskiwin and community were highly honored on Friday last when Baron Byng, Governor General of Canada, Lady Byng, Lady Boscawen and party paid an official visit to Wetaskiwin and spent a couple of hours in our midst.

The distinguished visitors were met at the train by a committee consisting of Mayor Montgomery, E. E. Sparks, M.P.P., and Ex-Mayor Fowler, and a number of the aldermen and other citizens. After the preliminary reception, the party was driven over to the court house where the address of welcome was given. Here the school children and a large crowd were assembled, and as Their Excellencies were entering the grounds, the National Anthem and "O Canada" were sung.

The address of welcome, which was beautifully inscribed, was read by Mayor Montgomery as follows:

"To General, His Excellency, Julian Hedworth George, Baron Byng of Vimy, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Member of the Royal Victorian Order, Governor General and Commander-in-Chief of the Dominion of Canada:

"May It Please Your Excellency:

"We, the citizens of Wetaskiwin, would express our appreciation of the great honor you have conferred upon us by your visit to our City.

"We welcome you with all cordiality and with sentiments of loyalty and devotion as the representative of our Gracious Sovereign, His Majesty King George the Fifth; also as the gallant soldier who served his King and Country in the Soudan, in South Africa, in Egypt and at Gallipoli with such distinguished success; while as Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian Forces at the Somme and Vimy Ridge you won a place in the affections of Canadians which time or circumstance will never extinguish.

"The Wetaskiwin district is representative of many people from many lands.

"We rejoice that through the influence of our churches, schools and enlightened public opinion, a process of Canadianization is working which is producting, throughout this community, a citizenship that loves British institutions and strives for the attainment of British ideals.

"Near to our city, years ago, the Crees and Blackfeet concluded a treaty of peace, whence arose the name 'Wetaskiwin' or 'The Hills of Peace'.

"The name was appropriate then; still is it so. But never was it more so than when our men and boys in unsurpassed loyalty obeyed the war call of King and Country, and joining Canadians from all parts of the Dominion, won eternal glory for Canada and imperishable fame for themselves.

"Some of them are not with us now but betimes we hear them whisper:

'We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, but now we lie
In Flanders' fields'.

"As Canadians we are greatly pleased with and encouraged by the interest you are taking in the development of our country, and we know that a large share of the success which lies before us will be due to the words of advice, encouragement and inspiration you speak as occasion offers.

"Your efforts to reach all portions of Canada and acquaint yourself with its resources; your readiness to meet people and your kindly treatment of them have already won for you a place of deep regard in all hearts.

"Not only in material matters have you displayed great interest but to the higher things that mean mind development and soul growth you have accorded such sympathy and helpfulness as is reacting inspiringly upon our schools, colleges and universities.

"You will be interested in the fact that this is pre-eminently a mixed farming district. Crops of wheat, oats, barley, rye and other grains are raised which for quality and weight are unsurpassed.

Dairying is an undoubted success. Wetaskiwin made butter in International competition has carried off supreme honors.

"Owing to favorable climatic and soil conditions the raising of live stock is of great importance in the district.

"We rejoice that Lady Byng is accompanying you and that we are honored with her presence in our midst.

"Her Excellency has entered with so much enthusiasm on the duties of the Vice Regalty which she shares with you that she is greatly beloved 'From sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth'.

"No Barriers will over separate her from our Canadian people.

"We assure you that deep and profound sentiments of loyalty and affection bind us to the Throne and Person of His Majesty the King.

"We trust that to Your Excellency, Lady Byng and the members of your party, your trip may yield unalloyed pleasure and beneficial results to all."

His Excellency then made a fitting reply, in the following words:

"Mr. Mayor, Ladies and Gentlemen,

"As representative of His Majesty the King I thank you for the loyal messages which you have expressed in the address just presented to me. It will give me great pleasure to forward your assurances to His Majesty whose interest in the people of the Empire is only equalled by his untiring service on their behalf.

"For myself, no words are adequate to express my gratitude for the welcome you have given me, or for the pleasure it affords me to be here. The duties of a Governor General, like those of any other position, inevitably count amongst their number some that are irksome or tedious. But that of travelling through the country as I am doing just now is an unalloyed joy. To me perhaps it has an added zest that was not given to my predecessors. For wherever I go I come across amongst new faces those of old comrades and old friends. It is good to see them again, to meet their families, to visit their homes and to hear how they have fared since our old times together in the war.

"But I do not cling to memories of the past simply for memories sake. the threat direct on the life and liberty of the individual and the State have been vanquished we allow self. The past is only useful to us if we use its lessons to enrich the present. Canada and I first became friends in times of war, and I would have you think for a few moments of the lessons we learnt, both those of us in France and those at home, from those anxious and strenuous times.

"War, however pernicious, has one merit. It brings out the feeling of comradeship which gave us that unity that was the secret of our victory. In peace time the needs for such a unity are felt less directly, but to my mind are none the less vital. Once fish or at any rate local interests to take up all our thoughts and energies. But comradeship is the foundation of true democracy and if the Canadian nation is to fulfill the destiny that this land makes possible, she will require the united labor and loyalty of every citizen.

"You have told me that the name of your city means "The Hills of Peace" and it seems to me to be a name of good omen. A land we have at last attained to after these strenuous years of war. Let us then use this fine perspective of our raised position to develop to the full this splendid inheritance of Canada.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, on behalf of Lady Byng and myself I thank you once again for all your kindness. I can only hope that the day will have as pleasant memories for you as it will have for us, and that we shall at some time in the future be able to meet again."

At the conclusion of the address, Baron Byng requested that the children be given a vacation, as a remembrance of his visit to the city. This request was granted, and the remainder of Friday was observed as a holiday.

The next part of the program was very interesting and impressive, being the presentation by His Excellency of Military Medals to Pte. J. E. Orn of the 31st Battalion; Pte. W. E. Girling 31st Battalion, and to Pte. A. E. Maggs of the 10th Battalion. At the conclusion of this decoration, the large crowd expressed its appreciation of the honor conferred on the boys by giving three rousing cheers and a tiger for the returned veterans.

His Excellency then presented Katherine Robertson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Robertson, with the Governor General's bronze medal for the highest marks in Grade VIII. in the Wetaskiwin inspectorate. Three cheers were given for Katherine.

His Excellency then inspected the members of the G.W.V.A. and the boy scouts and cubs, who were lined up on either side of the walk. He conversed briefly with each of the war veterans, and some of the scouts.

Presentations of beautiful bouquets of asters were made to Lady Byng and to Lady Boscawen by little Marion Emmun and Sybil Liversidge. These tiny tots were dressed in white and blue.

Their Excellencies then took up a position near the entrance gate to the grounds, and as the large crowd passed on they were introduced and shook hands with the distinguished guests.

The party then drove to the new hospital which was inspected and formally opened. They were received at the hospital by the matron, Miss Stafford, and the nurses, and by the members of the hospital board and the hospital aid society. Baron Byng, in performing this duty, complimented Wetaskiwin upon the fine building and equipment and was glad to know the community had such a good place in which to minister to the sick. Wetaskiwin's Roll of Honor, in the Council Chamber, was also inspected.

The visitation to Wetaskiwin concluded with a short drive through the district, and the party was accompanied by the mayor and aldermen and several of the prominent citizens. To enable His Excellency to get first hand information about the productiveness and possibilities of this district, stops were made at the homes of Geo. P. Root and P. J. Knester, where enlightening, but necessarily brief, conversations took place. The drive concluded at twelve o'clock, and the vice-regal party immediately entrained and left to keep their appointment at Red Deer. As the train departed, the large crowd, which assembled at the depot, gave three hearty cheers and a tiger.

THANKSGIVING DAY NOVEMBER SIXTH

Ottawa, Sept. 15.— Thanksgiving Day this year will be November 6th. The date was fixed by parliament at the 1921 session, being designed to fall on the Monday of the week containing Armistice Day, which is Nov. 11th.

Export Liquor Houses In Alberta Close in March

One more leak in the distribution of liquor in the province will be stopped next March when all the export liquor warehouses will be closed. Some four or five have voluntarily shut up shop, and the remaining eight will be closed on that date by order-in-council.

At the last session of parliament, legislation was passed enabling the province to cut out the export houses by order in council. As the licenses were paid upto next March, it was decided by the provincial government to allow them to do business until their licenses expired and also give them an opportunity to dispose of their stocks.

Delegations from the export houses have waited on the attorney general of Alberta asking that the time be extended, but it is the intention of the government to pass the order in council this fall and give the exporters plenty of time to wind up their business.

Alberta and Saskatchewan are working fairly close together on this business and it is probable that the Saskatchewan government will take similar action at about the same time as the Alberta order comes into effect.

Rev. W. J. James intends leaving the end of this week for his old home in England, on account of the serious illness of his parents.

EARLY MORNING FIRE ON THE EAST SIDE ON WEDNESDAY MORNING

The citizens were startled shortly before three o'clock Wednesday morning to hear the clanging of the fire bell and upon investigation it was found that a fire was burning in the general store of J. E. Gullberg & Sons on Railway street east. The cause of the fire is a mystery, but it is supposed to have started through defective wiring. The brigade made a quick response to the call, and in spite of the very dense smoke, and other obstacles confined the flames to the rear of Gullberg's store, where the started. Although the damage caused by the flames is comparatively small, the stock of both Gullberg & Sons and the East Side Drug Store in the same building, is almost a complete loss on account of the smoke and water. The heat was so intense that it broke the plate glass window in Gullberg's. It is estimated that the damage to the building, which is owned by Mr. Gullberg, will amount to about $600.00, and the damage to his stock will be is estimated that the damage to the drug store stock was $4,000. There was sufficient insurance carried in every case to cover the loss.

PEACE HILLS CHAPTER WILL GIVE DANCE

A meeting of the Peace Hills Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, was held at the home of Mrs. P. A. Mignelon on the 12th inst., with twenty members present.

Mrs. N. A. MacEachern was elected secretary, and Miss Beairsto echoes secretary, to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Miss Kaulbach and Miss Kydd.

It was decided to give a dance in the Angus Hall on Friday, September 29th, and all details were arranged. This promises to be a very enjoyable event and a large attendance is expected. Lynch's orchestra will provide the music.

The proceeds will be used to provide a gold medal and a scholarship of $25.00, such as were awarded last year to pupils obtaining the highest marks in Grade XII. and XI., the balance to be donated to the hospital.

"Valley of Silent Men" At The Angus Theatre

The theatre goers of Wetaskiwin and district will have a real treat on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, Sept. 27th and 28th, when the screen version of James Oliver Curwood's popular book "The Valley of Silent Men" will be shown. This will be one of the best features ever shown in the city, and Manager Dunphy has been obliged to pay a large sum of money to bring this attraction to the city. For this reason, the price of admission has been increased to 25c, including tax, for children, and 50c, with tax extra, for adults. An interesting feature of this big film is the fact that all of the scenes in the play were taken around Banff and Lake Louise, Alberta.

POLICE COURT

Police court was held on Wednesday morning, with R. M. Angus, Justice of the Peace, presiding. The first case to be disposed of was the three men who met with an accident at Lucas' crossing, and who were charged with driving a car while under the influence of liquor. The court found them guilty, and as a result the provincial treasury is enhanced by three fines, in the sums of $40.25, $15.25 and $7.25.

Another case to be disposed of was that of two young men who were charged with attending a dance at Lone Ridge and creating a disturbance while under the influence of liquor. They were each fined $9.25.

A WETASKIWIN DISTRICT WHEAT CROP

120 acres of Ruby Wheat grown by Mr. E. A. Holbrook on his farm in the Wetaskiwin District. Seeding was finished on May 20th, and cutting completed August 23rd., yielding 43 bushels per acre. Dry farming methods were followed with a rainfall of 5.06 inches only. Mr. Holbrook is the manager of the Bank of Montreal, Wetaskiwin, and has always taken a keen interest in farming and the welfare of farmers.

Stomach So Bad Could Only Eat Light Food

Mr. William Krusekei, Morden, Man., writes:—"Sometime ago I had quite a serious case of stomach trouble, (Indigestion) and was also troubled with gas in my stomach. I could scarcely eat anything outside of light food, and even then generally had pains after each meal. I had tried many different remedies, but without any improvement, and had almost given up hopes of ever getting well. Finally a neighbor recommended Burdock Blood Bitters to me, and after using it for a short time I felt much better, so I continued its use until I was completely relieved. I can honestly say that Burdock Blood Bitters has done wonders for me, and will highly recommend it to all with similar troubles to mine.
For the past 43 years, Burdock Blood Bitters has been put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE RING WITH THE BLUE STONES

He bought the ring for her at the fair. They had wandered together to the booth where a dark, wide-smiled lady sold jewelry. A gay little booth it was, and the lady—they were too young to perceive distinctions—had a beguiling way.

"Buy a ring for the little lady, young gentleman?" she coaxed and held out a glittering gem from her stock, at which Bertis gazed a little dazzled.

It was almost as bright as a genuine diamond and much too large for good taste.

"Will you wear it, Ruth?" Bertis stammered and felt in his pocket.

Ruth blushed and shook her head.

"Please," urged Bertis. "Pick out one you like Ruth. You know I'm going away and I want to give you something to remember me by. Please"

"Well—" Ruth's eyes scanned the brilliant array. There was one ring, quite simple, with small blue stones. It looked as if it might wear, although Ruth did not think of this fact only that she loved blue in any form or shape. She pointed. "I like that one."

"You've made a nice choice," smiled the dark lady. "That's a good little ring. Two dollars."

Two dollars was all the money Bertis had. Indeed, he had to borrow a penny from Ruth to pay, but the dark lady waived the penny."

"This is enough," she said, and put the $1.99 in her bag.

Ruth slipped the little ring on the third finger of her right hand and walked away admiring it.

"Course I'd remember you anyway, Bertis," she said. "But it was awful nice of you to give me this. Thank you very much."

Bertis was so red with delight that his freckles scarcely showed. "Some day, when we're both grown up, maybe I'll give you a better ring," he promised in a lordly way.

Next day the fair ended. Ruth came and looked through a hole in the fence. She was wearing the ring with the blue stones and her heart was heavy. The fair was over and Bertis had gone. His people had taken him away that morning.

She had not dreamed she should miss him so. He was only a boy and to a girl of 12 boys do not mean much as a rule. In a few days the feeling of loneliness wore away, but she continued to wear the ring. Bertis sent a postcard or two to which she responded, then she heard of him no more. She no longer heard her mother talk about the Walkers moving to Kansas. Other things came up.

By and by the ring began to cut into Ruth's finger, and at last she took it off and placed it in her little jewel box along with such other trinkets as she had. Afterwards when she lifted the lid of the box and saw the ring it did not mean much of anything to her. She was 17 and was getting ready to graduate

That summer was memorable in Ruth Blanding's life for two things—she took a prize for the best essay read on the commencement platform, and her father failed in business.

At first the failure only meant to her the fact that her mother was always crying and her father was always groaning. It had been a small business, but it had kept the three of them nicely. When it was gone there was nothing to live on and her father seemed incapable of making a fresh effort. The truth was that he was very ill and growing worse daily. Two more things happened, Ruth's father died suddenly and she went to work keeping books in Dolden's store.

Mrs. Blanding was not very well herself and she could not take boarders, so she rented rooms. There was no hotel worthy the name in Westport and her rooms were always full. Gradually as the place grew successful she withdrew into the northeast corner of the house, and there she and Ruth lived, rather restricted, but always comfortable, while strangers occupied the parlor, sitting room and library and all the bedrooms except one. But it was only so they could keep their home.

Busy and hedged in as Ruth's life was, she still kept up a certain popularity. Once she made a friend she had that friend forever. The small and rather exclusive little crowd that she had begun with she still kept about her. At least two of the young fellows in the crowd had proposed to her. One was Steve Bryant, the postmaster's son, and the other was Tommy Attride, who was her father's partner in the law firm of Attridge & Attridge. Her mother thought she was foolish not to take one or the other, but somehow Ruth couldn't. They were good friends but she could not think of them as being anything else.

One night she came home from her work unusually tired. It was a languid March day, warm, wet and enervating. Yet, Ruth had energy enough left to run up the steps and enter the home with the swiftness characteristic of her. As she closed the hall door she looked up and saw a young man coming down the stairs from his room above. Their eyes met in an arresting look. She who had been plump and tanned had grown slim and clear skinned and mature; he who had been freckled and red was tall, well groomed and successful looking. But still recognition called for recognition.

"Why, Bertis Walker!" she exclaimed.

"Ruth!" he returned.

He came down to her and they shook hands and stood talking for a few minutes. Then Ruth went on to the kitchen where she and her mother dined now.

"How in the world does Bertis Walker come to be back here and in this house?" she asked.

"Well, pretty nearly everybody who comes to town comes here for a room now," answered her mother. "Miss New went today and I let him have her room. He's doing some kind of important work for the government that takes him all over. He's only here for a few days. I didn't know him until he made himself known to me."

"I knew him," said Ruth.

"His mother died just about the time your father did and his father didn't stand it long after. He isn't married. He looked awfully pleased to get here. I suppose, Ruth, really you ought to get your crowd together and give him some kind of a welcome. A lot of them would be glad to see him again."

"Well, I'll ask the girls," Ruth replied.

Thus it happened that the next evening there was a party for Bertis at the home of Mary Marsh. Ruth went in company of Bertis.

"That's the best time I've had since I left Westport," Bertis said as he walked home with Ruth. "Do you know all the evening I've had an intense desire to open an office here and settle down."

"An office! What kind of an office" Ruth asked.

"I'm a lawyer, or I was before I went to work for the government. Ruth—" They had reached the steps. He was following Ruth up when he spoke and she turned and looked down at him. The porch light was on and they could see each other as plain as day. "Bertis said: "What did you do with that little blue ring I gave you so long ago?"

"That little blue ring!" Ruth gasped. "Why—I" she blushed—"I've got it yet."

"You know what I said about getting you another?"

"Oh, Bertis, you've such a long memory."

"Indeed, I have where you are concerned, Ruth. If I settle down here in Westport will you settle down with me for life?"

"Well, I'll have to talk it over with mother," Ruth answered.

The new ring was only a little less showy than those the dark lady had sold so many years before at her booth, but it was worth considerably more. Yet, perhaps, take it all in all, Ruth did not wear it with any more pride that she had worn the ring with the little blue stones.

STOMACH ULCER AND GALL STONES

After Suffering 25 Years, Completely Relieved by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. EDWARDS

MAPLEHURST PARK, HILLHURST, P.Q.

"I am in my 78th year. About 25 years ago, I began to have trouble with my Stomach. One doctor said I had Cancer; another said, Ulcer of the Stomach; another, Gall Stones; others, Ulcers of the Liver and Inflammation of the Gall Bladder.

Three years ago, I consulted one of the best specialists in Montreal. He said I must go to the hospital, have an Ulcer cut out of my stomach and gall stones removed. I was then 74 years old. I said "NO."

Then, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives". I found they helped me a lot, and I still take them occasionally, and I am so much better that my old friends often ask me what I have done to myself to look so well. I am gaining in weight and enjoying life very much"

Red Deer En Fete For Visit Of Lord Byng Who Unveils District's Memorial to Dead

Red Deer, Sept. 16—The vice-regal party spent two hours in Red Deer yesterday afternoon. His Excellency Lord Byng, governor General of Canada was accompanied by Lady Byng and Lady Margaret Boscawen. The people of Red Deer were delighted with the cordiality of the distinguished visitors who endeared themselves to all with whom they came in contact.

The 78th Battery provided a travelling escort under command of Major Lister, D Coy. 1st Alberta Regt., which also provided the guard of honor. The Red Deer Citizens' Band under the leadership of Bandmaster Welton assisted materially in making the proceedings so eminently successful.

After the inspections at the depot and the presentation of the civil address of welcome the party proceeded to the Red Deer and district war memorial which has been erected in the centre of Ross street about two blocks from the station. A very impressive unveiling ceremony was conducted here. The school children sang "O Canada" as the Governor General's car arrived. The invocation and prayer were offered by Capt. W. P. Muncaster, M.A., B.D. The hymns selected for the occasion were sung, and His Excellency unveiled the magnificent memorial, conceded to be one of the finest pieces of statutary to be found in western Canada. As the last folds of the flags fell away from the figure the "Last Post" was sounded by the bugler.

Lady Byng deposited a laurel wreath on behalf of the I.O.D.E. Mayor J. Collisson, M.D., deposited a beautiful wreath on behalf of the city and over seventy other floral tributes were deposited by other organizations and individuals. A copper box containing parchment rolls with the names of over 800 who served from the city and district and a roll with the names of 112 of these who never came back was deposited in the pedestal of the memorial.

CHRIS. MARKER WAS KNIGHTED BY DANISH KING

Alberta's dairy commissioner, Chris. Marker, has been singled out by the king of his native land, Denmark, for signal distinction and has been knighted with the Order of the Dannebrog, an order instituted in 1219, but Mr. Marker does not claim to be a charter member. For eleven years Mr. Marker was vice consul in Alberta for the Danish government and it was for his services in this respect as well as for the work he accomplished in his adopted country that the order was awarded. Mr. Marker gave up his office as vice consul when he moved to Edmonton last winter, and his successor was P. Pallesen of Calgary.

A few weeks ago the consul general for Canada, P. Schou, made a trip through Canada and it was at that time that the honor was conferred, but owing to Mr. Marker's extreme modesty, it only becoming generally known now.

The outward and visible sign of the order is a gold enameled cross surmounted with the initials of the reigning sovereign and the crown, its motto is "God and the King," and the cross is suspended from a white ribbon with red borders.

The price of flour dropped thirty cents a barrel at Calgary in Friday. The present price in carload lots is $6.15, which is within 25 cents of the lowest price for the past twelve years.

I have suffered with rheumatism for twenty years. My limbs and my hands are swollen and out of shape. I have tried different kinds of medicine, but did not get any relief, and was beginning to think there was nothing that would help me when my son heard of Verno and the benefit others had received from it; so I decided to give it a try. I took a number of boxes, and although it gave me some relief I stopped taking it and sent for some other medicine which was highly advertised, but I was getting worse all the time I was taktrying it, so I started taking Verno again. I have now taken thirty boxes and I am thankful to say that my pains and aches have all left me. I can eat and sleep as good as ever. I cannot recommend Verno too highly.

Let The Times Have The News

We are anxious to cover the entire news happenings in the town and district each week, and with that end in view we seek the co-operation of everyone in the neighborhood. When there is a wedding, a birth, a death, or a visitor to the family, or any of the family goes away on a trip, any social or business meetings, church, school or any other kind of meeting in fact anything and everything that is news, or can be moulded into news, write, phone or call. With your assistance we can report all the news that occurs in a manner satisfactory to all. No person ought to feel that their doings are too unimportant to receive mention in the paper—and if you tell these things to us yourself it will eliminate the possibility and probability of the items being incorrectly reported

Class Leadership

An Editorial for Young People

This is the time of year when our young people in the schools ought to decide upon the sort of effort they will make in their studies this term. There is no doubt that if a boy or girl decides to do better work this term than in the past, the better standing can be gained. The very fact that such a decision is made will lead to greater persistence, greater application, a surer determination, and those are the things that count in getting anywhere, quite as much as ability. Ability is not of much account, if it is not accompanied with the power to work. The Herald has had it in mind for some time to say to our young friends—particularly our young Canadian friends—that they ought to do something in this matter of foreign-born chilldren beating them out in the class room. That has become altogether too common in Calgary. It has indeed become too common in all Western Canada. The children of foreign born parents seem to have a greater appreciation for the educational opportunities of this Dominion than have our native English speaking children. And having that greater appreciation, they apply themselves more assiduously to their studies, they concentrate more upon their work, and they set the pace for their classes. It is not that these sons and daughters of foreign born parents have better brains than our children. It is simply that they know the value of education and are willing to work hard to get it. How about it, you Canadians? Are you going to let the other chaps beat you in the race for honors in the class room? You would not want to let them beat you in a running race. When it comes to any of the outdoor games you are determined to hold your own, and to demonstrate that you are leaders. Then why not prove that to be so in the class room? A writer in the Canadian Magazine, a month or so ago, said that we are prone to regard the peoples of other tongues and races as inferior in caste and status to ourselves, but he added that, educationally, the foreigner is the student of Canada who is quickest and most ambitious to fit himself for the higher professions and for technical work. That should not continue to be true. But it will continue to be true if our Canadian boys and girls do not set out to demonstrate that they can study just as hard as the young foreign born students who are now doing so well in our schools. —Herald.

Prince Not Wealthy

Although probably nobody will maintain that the Prince of Wales should be classed as a poor man, yet he is by no means so affluently situated as many may imagine. It is true that his apparent income runs into about 200,000 a year, but the financial demands upon him are so heavy that this sum is very considerably shrunk before he can readily call any part of it his own. Incidentally, it may be of interest to know that although parliament granted certain sums for the Prince's eastern tour, he was considerably out of pocket as a result of his somewhat extensive trip.

Trans-Canada Road Will Be Completed This Year

Huge sums of money are being spent on road construction in Alberta this season. The Alberta link of the trans-Canada road will be completed this year. The greater part of the road work in the province this season has been on the construction and repair of trunk roads, but next year the branch and district roads are to receive the most attention, and by the end of 1922 it is expected that the province will have a network of highways second to none on the American continent.

Marquis Wheat Best Suited Alberta's Climate Condition

Since the exeprimental station at Lacombe was started in 1907, forty-five varieties and selections of spring wheat and four varieties of Durum wheat have been grown in experimental plots These include all of the standard varieties and a number of selections developed at the experimental farm at Ottawa

During the past season twenty-three varieties and strains have been under test Some of these have not been under test long enough for an opinion to be expressed as to their value, while others have clearly demonstrated that they are not suitable for the conditions of soil and climate of central Alberta.

The results of those that have proven worthy of consideration are as follows:

Variety	Days Maturing	Yield
Marquis	132	52
Huron	124	51
Bishop	130	49
Bobs	128	49
Ruby	121	41
Prelude	116	34

It will be noted that Marquis heads the list. This variety is an outstanding plot. It is very uniform in type, height and color of chaff and grain. The straw medium and strong. The head is medium long, pointed and bald with a few short awns in some instances. The chaff is straw yellow in color and holds the kernels so closely that complete separation is sometimes difficult, which makes the variety valuable for windy sections where wheat growing on a large scale is practised and where some of the crop may become very ripe before it can be cut. The seed is medium in size very heavy rather short and blocky and dark red color.

Huron, which comes second on the list, is a bearded wheat with brown chaff, and rather an open head. The straw is medium length and fairly strong. The wheat is fairly low in milling and baking quality, which, together with the fact that it is bearded, puts it in a class decidedly below Marquis.

Bishop is a white or amber colored wheat. It has no beards and has a white or straw colored chaff. This wheat is not an improvement on Marquis in any way, and as it is a white wheat, does not meet with as much favor among the millers.

Bobs is also a white wheat and is lacking in uniformity of type that the Marquis has. This, added to the fact that it is not a high yielder, will prevent it from becoming a popular variety.

Ruby is about ten days earlier in maturing than Marquis, but while not quite as long and heavy in the straw, it stands up well. A peculiarity of Ruby is the marked reddish color of the straw. The head is medium long, bald and tapers at the top. The glume is the same color as the straw, but do not hold the kernel closely, which makes the variety a little inclined to shatter when fully ripe. The kernels are red, flinty, shorter and rounder than Marquis and possess high milling and baking qualities.

Prelude is the earliest of any of the varieties tested at the station, being 15 days earlier than Marquis. It has a very short, rather weak straw, with short bearded and open heads. The grain is a dull reddish color and small in size.

The absence of Red Bobs, Kitchener and Early Red Fife from this table will be noted. This is because Red Bobs has been grown for only three years and Early Red Fife for two years. During the three year period that Red Bobs has been grown it averaged 50 bushels. For the two years that Kitchener and Early Red Fife have been grown, the former produced an average of 46 bushels and the latter 45 bushels. Red Bobs matures two or three days earlier than Marquis and Early Red Fife about one day, while Kitchener has always reached maturity on the same day as Marquis.

The results of the experiments at Lacombe and other experimental stations would indicate that for much the larger portion of the wheat growing area of the west, we have no variety superior to Marquis. The most severe criticisms offered this variety are that it is, under the very dry conditions, too short in the straw, and that it is too hard to thresh. The latter is almost a "good fault" but for some of the drier districts, especially on stubble land, other varieties may be more suitable. Where early frosts frequently occur, Ruby may do better than the Marquis, as it is about ten days earlier and is equal to Marquis in milling qualities. Ruby yields considerably less than Marquis, however, and is somewhat inclined to shatter, which is very unfortunate.

The testing of new varieties is expensive experimental work and the average farmer when looking for new seed will find it much more profitable to buy clean, pure registered seed of the proven standard varieties, rather than a few bushels of a very high priced seed of some widely advertised but unproven sort.

RED CROSS SOCIETY MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The provincial division of the Red Cross Society is making extensive preparations for the finance and membership campaign which is timed to take place on November 5th, ending on Armistice Day, November 11. Posters will be issued to every post office in the province direct from the post office at Ottawa, and all branches will be supplied with campaign literature to assist in the great drive.

At the present time there are two hundred active branches and committees, and it is expected that between the present date and the campaign, two hundred more will be organized. The province will be divided into four hundred districts, each under the direction of a local committee.

It is confidently expected that there will be a generous and unanimous response to the appeal for funds, as the public are becoming more and more acquainted with the remarkable record of pioneer service in nursing the sick at points beyond the fringe of civilization. The latest and perhaps one of the best achievements of the Red Cross is the establishment in the city of Calgary of the first Sick Childrens' Hospital in Canada. To its doors are brought the maimed and crippled youngsters from all over the province, where they receive the skill and care that is only obtainable in a city hospital. The relief distribution of the drought stricken areas last winter brought comfort to many thousands of women and children in the extreme weather. At Brickburn house the work has been carried on since the war of caring for the soldier's dependant children, feeding, clothing and carrying on their public school education.

The new departure of health instruction of the people is part of the peace time activities and is being conducted with considerable skill and resourcefulness.

It is no easy task to attempt to persuade the man in the street that he should take an health inventory of himself. The new health education enables him to measure his health as a positive possession of treasure. By increasing its possible further gains adding to the capital of his personality.

The Red Cross is cooperating with the public health departments and is setting the standards of public health higher each year. In trying to reach this high standard it is conscious of limitations of lack of funds.

Prevention is cheaper, as well as better than cure, and in serving humanity in the cause of health the Red Cross recognizes the supreme importance of diminishing the world's suffering by broad casting the laws that govern healthy living.

For this reason it maintains a health library, rural baby clinics, home nursing classes, moving picture and lecture service, carrying to the most distant points the gospel of good health.

Nor must we forget that in event of a national disaster or epidemic, there is at divisional headquarters an emergency and relief service ready at a moment's notice to cope with any call.

How Zam-Buk Saved My Leg!

"For years I could hardly walk," writes Mr. Jeffrey, of 31, French St., Methuen, Mass. "I was treated by doctors for an ulceration which started in my ankle and extended to the knee. Though sceptical when I read of other legs being healed by Zam-buk, I gave the balm a trial.

"Whilst Zam-Buk didn't put my leg right in a day or two, it did ease pain and inflammation wonderfully. Perseverance soon convinced me that, thanks to Zam-Buk, I was at last on the sure road to recovery, and in time the terrible sore thoroughly healed. For three years now, I've had no leg trouble."

In obstinate sores, old wounds and ulceration where destruction of the tissues has occurred, Zam-Buk displays extraordinary healing power.

Sufferers need not in the way it soothes pain and inflammation, purifies diseased parts and stimulates the growth of new healthy tissue. Whereas ordinary ointments simply cover over surface trouble, Zam-Buk healing is permanent for it leaves no trace of disease to break out.

Zam-Buk proves equally effective in eczema, ringworm, salt rheum, piles, poisoned sores, abscesses, burns, scalds, etc. All chemists and dealers 50c.

Report Grain Shipments Much Heavier Than 1921

Decrease in grain shipments from Manitoba points, caused by the wet weather delaying threshing, is more than balanced by augmented loadings from Saskatchewan and Alberta centres, Canadian National officials said Saturday in Winnipeg. Although there has been a diminution in the number of cars from Manitoba, those from Alberta and Saskatchewan, where threshing is now in full swing, have tended to advance the daily aggregate of cars which is now very close to the 1000 mark.

Wednesday the number of Canadian National cars inspected was 1,595 as against 1,220 on the corresponding date last year. These brought the total for the 1922-23 season to date to 6,290 cars inspected against 5,155 in the same period last year.

In spite of the prevalence of rain and dampness, Thursday, the grain movement over the Canadian Pacific railway showed an increase over that of the earlier days of the week, and very considerably over the corresponding periods of the previous season. Grain marketing totals for the district served by the Canadian Pacific totalled 1,523,822 bushels, Thursday, as against only 483,302 bushels for Sept. 14th, 1921, while the number of cars loaded Thursday was 973, or an increase of 323 over the 650 reported for that day last season.

October 2-8 Fixed As Fire Prevention Week

Fire prevention week, as it has come to be called, has been fixed for the week beginning October 2nd this year. During that week special propaganda will be carried on for the education of the people in the necessity of greater care in connection with the prevention of fires. Such enormous losses are reported each year due to carelessness in fires that the departments all over Canada are taking every means in their power to impress on the people the need for care and the uselessness of such a waste.

Preparations for the plans, so far as Alberta is concerned, are now being considered by the provincial fire commissioner, and the various organizations will be circularized within a week. Proclamations are already being distributed and an effort is being made to get the various municipalities to cooperate in this work. The ministers will be asked to speak on this subject in the churches and a general campaign is being organized.

How the Udder of a valuable cow was saved

Chas. K. Robbins, of Chebogue Point, Yarmouth, N.S., writes:—"A recent experience in reclaiming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow's udder has demonstrated again the great worth of Minard's Liniment. I can recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a herd of cows.
"For years I have never considered my household stock complete without a bottle of Minard's. For burns, bruises, sprains, frostbites, or chilblained heels. And I know of no better remedy for a severe cold.
"I think I am safe in saying that among all the patent medicines there is none that covers as large a field of usefulness as does Minard's Liniment. A real tonic—Good for Man and Beast."

HEALTH CONDITIONS ARE FAIR IN ALBERTA

Edmonton, Sept. 18.—Health conditions throughout the province are in a very satisfactory condition this fall, states Dr. W. C. Laidlaw, deputy minister of health. There have been quite a number of cases of a disease which has not been definitely diagnosed, and is called typhoid or intestinal flu. The symptoms resemble typhoid, but do not react in the same way as that disease and the provincial laboratory is investigating the matter at the present time. Following the extreme drought of the last couple of seasons, the wells throughout the country are not in as good condition as could be desired.

Grain

THE Northwest was a barren waste only forty-odd years ago. Today, in a thousand-mile belt across the three prairie provinces, is one of the greatest grain-producing areas in the world. For the year 1921 the total value of the wheat, oats, barley and rye produced throughout Canada was estimated by the Government at $432,984,750.

The Bank of Montreal has a service adapted to the needs of the farmer and a system of branches reaching to all districts.

YEGGMEN MAKE GOOD HAUL IN VILLAGE IN SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatoon, Sept. 15.—Apparently the work of expert "soup" men, the post-office safe in Abram's general store at Mennon, 25 miles northwest of here was blown open and $3,000 in cash taken and the safe in the Quaker Oats elevator in the same place was cracked and $300 lifted sometime during Wednesday night. The doors of the safes in both cases were blown clean off with nitroglycerine, mackinaw coats being wrapped around the safes to muffle the explosions. Entry into the buildings was gained by tools which the yeggmen stole from the section tool house near by.

"Obey" is Omitted

Portland, Ore., Sept. 16.—The house of bishops of the protestant Episcopal church late Thursday voted in favor of taking the word "obey" from the marriage ceremony of that church. the bishops voted to refer the proposal to eliminate the phrase "with my worldly goods I thee endow" from the marriage ceremony, back to the commission which had submitted it.

UNIVERSITY RESEARCH DEPARTMENT HAS SOLVED TASK OF REDUCING CONTENTS OF McMURRAY ASPHALT

With the discovery of a new process which, according to all indications, will be a practical method of separating the deposits found in the McMurray tar sands so that it can be transported at low cost, the greatest difficulty heretofore encountered in road construction has been solved. The announcement of this process was made to the Kiwanis club, who took luncheon in the University lounge Monday, by Dr. K. A. Clark, of the industrial research department.

The process on a small scale has proven to be practical, and there remains to be worked out the methods of carrying on the separation in a large enough scale to make it a profitable enterprise. The Athabasca sand contains about one half of tar deposits, which can be reduced by this new process to where is the sand content is less than 15 per cent.

In the course of his address Dr. Clark said:

Status of Tar Sand Problem

"There are few topics which touch more readily the interests of the people of Edmonton or Alberta than the question of the Athabasca bituminous sands. There is no need for arguing about their existence. They stand out in plain sight. Geologists say that the geological formations in the province are favorable for the accumulation of petroleum pools. Oil companies are confident enough of the possibility of discovering oil to spend large amounts of money in searching for it. Oil pools probably exist, but they are hidden away out of sight in the depths of the earth. The case is quite different with the bituminous sands. This great bituminous deposit comes to light in great cliffs along the banks of the waterways of the north and proclaims its reality to anyone who wishes to pass by. The deposits is one of the big resources of the province. Everybody knows it is there. Everybody believes that it will eventually become the basis of industrial developments. Everybody knows from newspaper reports that effort is being expended on many sides to accomplish their industrial development. The aim of my remarks today will be to tell you as best one person is capable of doing so, just how the whole situation stands at the present time and what likelihood there is of an early establishment of a bituminous sand industry.

Gasoline from Bituminous Sands

"A great many people are looking for a development of the bituminous sands in the way of production of the well known petroleum products, such as gasoline, kerosene, lubricants, etc. Many investigators are endeavoring to accomplish this result. There is no doubt in my mind but that they will eventually succeed. I wish to point out to you, however, that there are some very serious and difficult problems to be overcome before success is attained. If you can appreciate the difficulties, you will not be so impatient if considerable time elapses before you are operating your motor cars on McMurray products. The trouble commences with the fact that the bituminous sand contains not petroleum but instead a petroleum residue called asphalt. It is the sort of thing one makes asphalt pavements out of, and not gasoline and oils. If the bituminous sand is heated to quite a high temperature, the contained asphalt is broken up chemically into a crude oil, which is often referred to as being equivalent to crude petroleum. This contention is only partly true. I could hold forth for a long time in a technical discussion of the difference between crude petroleum and the crude oil obtained by distilling the bituminous sands, and most of you would be no wiser at the end than when I started. A speaker must keep within the experience of his hearers if he wishes to successfully convey his ideas. How can I illustrate to you the difference between the crude distillate from the tar sands and crude petroleum? I will try by this comparison: The crude tar sand oil resembles crude petroleum about as closely as moonshine whisky resembles a good brand of Scotch. Besides good wholesome constituents, it contains a lot of stuff that the user wishes had not been there. If there were prohibition laws enforced against petroleum crude oils such as that obtainable from the bituminous sands would rapidly come to the front. There will never be prohibition against petroleum, but another circumstance just as effective is arising. The world's supply of petroleum is rapidly diminishing, and the demand for petroleum products is just as rapidly increasing. Industry and science sees the handwriting on the wall, and studies are going on all over the world to discover how to prepare as economically as possible suitable petroleum products from such sources as bituminous sands. You may pick up your paper tomorrow morning and learn that the result has been accomplished, or you may wait fifteen years before you can buy oils for your needs that have been produced from the McMurray deposits. The development of the bituminous sands for production of petroleum motor fuels and oils is indefinitely in the future.

Bituminous Sands for Pavements

"Is there any other field of usefulness for the bituminous sands involving no serious obstacles and which gives reason to look for an early development of the bituminous deposit? Yes, there is. There is no reason, other than the factor of cost, why bituminous sands cannot be utilized in road construction, and recent developments go to indicate that the cost factor need not stand in the way. Now that the A.&G.W. is operating to Waterways, there is direct road connection between the bituminous sand deposits and the populated parts of the province.

"City paving construction can be expected to utilize considerable quantities of bituminous sand. But to my mind the great field of application which awaits the bituminous sands is rural road construction. The development of highway systems in the prairie provinces is at more or less of a standing because of the lack of suitable materials with which to build them. If only a way could be devised of utilizing the bituminous sands to make good the deficiency on the prairies of the stones and gravel which other parts of the Dominion possess. The research department of this university has expended considerable study to this end with good indications of success. The great difficulty with prairie roads is their exaggerated characteristic of turning into mud when the rain comes along. For the most part, prairie roads, when dry and dragged smooth, are as hard and stable as could be wanted for our present traffic needs. If the prairie soils could be so stabilized that they would remain as satisfactory through a rain as when conditions are dry, we would have little or no complaint. We have found that the incorporation of about five per cent by weight of the asphalt contained in the bituminous sands into all but the heavy clay soils will so stabilize them that prolonged rain will not cause them to soften or to turn into mud. A very clayey soil requires much more asphalt to accomplish the result. But if the clay soil were first mixed with the nearest sandy material available, the small amount of asphalt will again suffice. The asphalt can be readily mixed into the soil when it is wet and soft. When the soil again dries out, it has become quite indifferent to the action of water. What is still needed to make this type of construction practicable for rural roads is cheap asphalt produced from the bituminous sands, and a satisfactory and economical procedure for incorporating the asphalt into the soil.

"The Industrial research department has from the start taken the attitude that the most direct way of making use of the bituminous sand deposits is road construction work. Our study of the problem has all been from this viewpoint. The construction of asphalt pavements from bituminous sand involves nothing more than slight modifications of standard procedure. The application of the tar sands to rural road construction seems to call for the development of something new in the way of methods of road construction. But it looks as though, as a result of our experiments with bituminized soils, we can see about what these new methods are to be. The research department has foreseen one difficulty, however, standing in the way of any extensive application of bituminous sands to road construction. The bituminous sands consist, at the best, of four parts by weight of sand to every part of asphalt. If crude bituminous sand is used for road construction, it means that five tons of material have to be shipped in order to deliver one ton of asphalt. The sand content of the bituminous sand is no detriment to road construction. But it is certainly not worth the cost of shipping all the way from McMurray. Bituminous sand will be used for road work only if it proves a source of cheap asphalt—cheaper, at least, than asphalt as ordinarily placed on the market. You can readily see that asphalt purchased in the form of crude bituminous sand will cost the price of mining plus the cost of freight on the contained asphalt and four times this weight of sand. Such asphalt may be cheap asphalt at Edmonton, but how much further than Edmonton can it be shipped economically? You can see at once that what is needed is a scheme of separating the sand from the asphalt at the bituminous sand deposit so that the freight charges need only be paid on the asphalt itself. Development of the bituminous sand deposits on any extended scale depends on the finding of such a separation process. The research department has been searching for this process for some time and it now looks as though it had found it. We can separate bituminous sand into sand and asphalt concentrate containing 15 per cent or less of sand. We have carried out this separation on a large enough scale to feel confident that it is now a matter only of mechanical engineering to perform the separation on as large a scale as desired.

"A great deal of study is being expended to the end of finding out how the ordinary petroleum products, such as motor fuels and oils, can be manufactured from such materials as the bituminous sand. Very serious and difficult problems confront this investigation, which problems may be solved very soon or only after a lapse of years. Development of our bituminous sand deposits for the manufacture of oils is set rather obscurely into the future. There appear, on the other hand, to be no serious problems confronting the development of the deposit for road construction work. Successful pavement has been constructed in Edmonton with the crude bituminous sand. The only reason which will prevent similar results being produced in cities further away than Edmonton is the cost of transportation. The possibility of shipping a concentrated asphalt instead of the crude tar sands will greatly extend the field of application of the material. It will be still more extended if we can succeed in demonstrating its use in the building of a cheap type of serviceable rural road. The research department has secured twenty-two tons of bituminous sand and it is proposed to extract the asphalt from this supply this winter and to make use, next season, of the four tons of asphalt so secured in experimental rural road types of construction. Our laboratory indications are good. What is needed now is the practical service test. It is to be hoped that by this time next year it will be possible to announce that a type of economical rural road has been demonstrated which is capable of putting an end to muddy week end auto journeys and that thereby a firm basis for an extensive tar sand industry has been established."

The crop situation throughout Alberta has improved to such an extent that officials of the department of agriculture are now of the opinion that the estimate of thirteen bushels of wheat to the acre, as recently announced from Ottawa, is on the low rather than the high side.

WANT BANKERS AND FARMERS IN ACTIVE WORK PARTNERSHIP

Last week's article from the Financial Post on the feelings of the Alberta farmers and stockmen regarding the banking system, has been followed by another article from the same correspondent, in which he says:

Undoubtedly the picture of the American bank is overdrawn, but it looks good to John Smith, smarting under refusal of a loan which he feels sure would have turned out to the advantage of both lender and borrower. From it he argues that what can be done south of the line can be done north of it, and whether it has or has not been done in the republic he sees no reason why it could not be done in Alberta. Hence he begins to agitate in his local of the U.F.A. for a new bank—organized on the United States rather than the Canadian, plan. Not because he is disloyal, but because he has been led to feel that a banker who really understood his position, and who had the necessary authority, would not hesitate to lend him capital to buy stock or equipment, or to clear or improve land, or to otherwise increase his earning and paying power.

When he comes to analyze the matter it appears to John that the local manager of the branch bank is not really to be blamed. He is the victim of a system. Being a straight salary man his first duty is to keep his job. And the surest of all ways to lose that job is to lose money. Hence, having sense the branch manager assumes a defensive attitude toward the would-be borrower. He takes no chances. What is worse, having no direct personal interest in pushing business he does not try to investigate the possibility of making safe and profitable loans. In brief, he is so anxious to avoid the unpardonable sin of losing money that he hasn't time to develop the virtue of making money.

Pursuing the subject, the conclusion John comes to is that the way to fit the Canadian bank into the conditions and circumstances of the western agricultural community is to put the manager of the local branch into the position of the cashier of the small town bank in a western agricultural state, load him with responsibility for results of a positive, as well as a negative, kind, give him him a share in the profits, if that is the way to spur his ambition to find ways to stake the farm for larger business, and give him rope.

It is out of such personal impressions that the grievance of the western farmer against the banks has grown. Disregarding the wild dreams of agricultural Trotskys, and putting aside the grouch of the man whom the Bank will not trust for the good reason that he is not to be trusted, there is on the part of many level headed farmers a belief that it is possible to change a more active factor in the economic situation. Less brakes and more steam seem to them to be what is required if the financial tractor is to be made to pull the load it ought to pull. And they are convinced that the way to achieve the needed readjustment is to decentralize the control and give larger freedom of action to the local manager who is actually on the ground.

The demand for a provincial bank is incidental, rather than essential. Of the men who cheered the proposition at Calgary it is safe to say that a small fraction only would want anything of the kind if the already existing banks would come halfway to meet what the farmer thinks is a legitimate request. In overwhelming majority the farmers do not want to go into banking, either directly or indirectly as taxpayers of the province. But they do want to farm to the best advantage, and think that credit can more readily be converted into cash capital at times if the bank and the farm are to be brought into a more active workable partnership. In the meantime the United Farmer government is standing pat on the provincial bank scheme.

Taber hospital has closed its doors by order of the town council. The government has been notified that the plant is there any time the arrangements are made to open and conduct it as a municipal hospital.

MILLET

Last Friday the citizens turned out to the meeting that was called in reference to the proposed creamery. Whether this meeting will bring a creamery to Millet or not we do not know. But we do know that there will be a creamery in Millet in the near future.

Millet's first annual school fair takes place on the Board of Trade grounds on Friday next, September 22. There will be sports for the children, and a big community dance at night with the five piece Leduc orchestra in attendance.

Bert Wilkinson and C. Prevey were visitors to Millet on Friday.

Millet is quiet these days. Everyone seems to be out at the oil well. We note that the Calgary papers are continually referring to the Pigeon Lake oil field. There is sure going to be a big boom here one of these days.

Vic. Rowley and family have now moved into their new home.

Miss Cauderwood was visiting friends at Edmonton over the week-end.

Willie Walford has just returned from Edmonton where he has been completing the sale of his pool room.

C. Olson and family have moved into the Heywood house.

Do not forget the first school fair in Millet on Friday. Every effort is being made to make it a success. Exhibits will come in from schools ten and twelve miles in the country. The display will be in Pinyon's hall. The Millet teaching staff and Miss Minnie McLean are doing all they can to have things in readiness for this event.

Next Sunday, the 24th, is Rally Day —A joint service will be held at Hillside, Larch Tree and Millet. Special addresses and music will be given. Make this a banner day.

On Tuesday evening, September 26, all 'teen age girls are cordially invited to meet at the church for the purpose of organizing a Girls' Club.

On Sunday, October 1st at 11.30 a. m., the Porto Bella congregation will hold a special harvest home service, followed by a dinner served by the ladies of the Pipestone and Porto Bella congregations. A special form of service is being prepared, the musical part being under the direction of Miss Atkinson, Mrs. V. Scott and Miss Lottie Chilson. Everybody is heartily invited to come. Special plans will be made for the coming year.

Mr. Peterson is slowly recovering from the effects of a bad fall last week so that he was confined to his bed. We hope his recovery will be complete.

J. W. West is making still more improvements to his store by having some special advertising done by our special artist, Ira Benham.

Mrs. E. Dickey and family moved out of town this week, to meet her husband in the near future at Portland, Ore. Mrs. Dickey and family leave with the best wishes of many friends she has made. Being active in all social and church work, she will be greatly missed.

LEWISVILLE

Rosebriar school has opened with an enrolment of 12. Miss Greiner is in charge. At last report the Battle River school had not secured a suitable teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kerr, of Ponoka, were guests at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Jones, on Sunday.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Craig Wright will regret to learn that they are leaving for their home in Philadelphia this week.

Miss Margaret Mosesson entertained Miss Ronnie, of Wetaskiwin, over the week end. Miss Mosesson is attending school in Wetaskiwin.

Mr. Geo. Brunner and son are up from Ferintosh harvesting the green-feed on their Lewisville farm.

Mr. Ed. Volkens visited Wetaskiwin Saturday. We are informed that he intends leaving for his home at Long Beach, California, soon.

Mr. Jas. Caine who is doing some carpenter work for Mr. W. C. Wright spent Sunday with the home folks in Wetaskiwin. Master H. Standefer accompanied him.

Mrs. Murphy and Miss Mabel Logan of Wetaskiwin, were visitors at Lewisville Sunday.

The threshing outfit owned by Messrs. Bjorkgren, Lock and Gustafson began work this week. Mr. Wm. Wilson has been threshing on the farms of Thirsk Bros. and Roy Newville for several days. Mr. A. Plaim is operating his outfit on his own farm.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McKenna is recovering from her recent illness. Dr. McLeod is attending her.

Frost Free Periods in Alberta

At this season of the year, when the first frosts are putting the autumn tints on the trees, it might be interesting to know something about the frost free periods in Alberta. The following figures are taken from statistics prepared by the publicity and statistical branch of the department of agriculture, compiled from the meteorlogical records covering a number of years.

Commencing at Medicine Hat in the south, we find that over a period of 37 years, Medicine Hat has had an average of 119 days frost free, with 146 in 1914 as the longest period and 93 days in 1917 as the shortest.

At Calgary, over a 38 year period, the average has been 81 days frost free, with 120 days in 1913 as the longest period and 38 days in 1912 as the shortest.

At Edmonton, over a period of 39 years, the average has been 90 days, with 118 days in 1906 as the longest period and 52 days in 1918 as the shortest.

At Ranfurly, over 16 years, the average has been 77 days, with 120 days in 1919 as the longest period, and 14 days in 1914 as the shortest.

At Fort Vermillion, under the Arctic circle, over a 17 year period, the average has been 55 days, with 91 days in 1906 as the longest, and 15 days in 1917 as the shortest period.

Compliments Alberta Stockmen

Here is a nice testimonial to the cattle breeders of Alberta, from an American Stock Magazine: "The Aberdeen-Angus Journal," published at Webster City, Iowa. This paper tells of the Edmonton Spring Show held on April 10 to 15. "The show all through is reported as one of the best ever held in the Dominion. The man who goes to the expense of attending a stock show desires to get the greatest possible value for his money. The Edmonton show provided all these educational features. One is safe in saying that Edmonton put on the greatest show of fat cattle this spring that has ever been held anywhere in Canada. The quality of the bulls offered at the Edmonton bull sale improves each year. The time was when there was a decided gap between the bulls sold at Calgary and those put through the sale ring at Edmonton. This breach is gradually closing, and there are now few tail end bulls offered at the northern event."

Byng's Sixtieth Birthday

On Monday of last week when the Edmonton Canadian Club tendered Lord Byng, governor general of Canada, a luncheon at the Macdonald, the chairman announced that it was His Excellency's sixtieth birthday. The hero of Vimy was tendered a real western ovation. On this occasion the introductory remarks of Chairman John Ross, deputy minister of education, the address of Baron Byng, and the reply of Premier Greenfield, were all commendable samples of patriotic, terse, and business like expression, really model luncheon addresses.

Swift Western Justice

Automobile owners all over the province will commend the good work of the Alberta Provincial Police. Saturday night an automobile was stolen from the parking space near one of the theatres. The provincial police officers at Red Deer made a couple of arrests on Sunday. Judge McHaffy held court Monday. The two men confessed their guilt and were sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Within forty-eight hours of the theft, the guilty parties had been arrested, tried, sentenced, and were on their way to jail. In these men, the police gathered in a couple of bad actors—old hands at the auto stealing game.

Relief for Small Dairymen

The board of railway commissioners for Canada met in Edmonton on Monday. Among other matters up for hearing was the application of the Alberta Dairymen's association for a lower express rate on three gallon cream cans. At present the minimum charge is on a five gallon can. This arrangement penalizes the small producers. There are 35,000 cream shippers in the province, the majority of them shippers of small lots. The commissioners gave the dairymen and express companies one month in which to reach a satisfactory agreement. Failing to do this, the commission will draw up a tariff.

South Alberta's Grain Crop

Southern Alberta's grain crop in 1921 was somewhat over 10,000,000 bushels according to figures just published. For the year ending September 1st, the Canadian Pacific railway shipments of the Lethbridge division, amounted to 8,503,300 bushels of wheat and 1,387,000 bushels of other grains. The grains milled and disposed of locally amounted to 319,000 bushels. It is anticipated that the figures for 1922 will reach four times the above figures for the same area.

Workmen's Compensation Conference

The conference of the Workmen's Compensation Boards of Canada, is taking place in Edmonton this week. Alberta is represented by John T. Stirling, chairman, W. P. McNeil, commissioner, J. A. Kinney, commissioner and A. Forin, medical officer. The delegates from other provinces are: V. J. Paton, chairman Nova Scotia board, J. A. Sinclair, New Brunswick board; J. Sugree, commissioner New Brunswick board; S. Price, chairman Ontario board; T. N. Dean, statistician, Ontario board; Mr. Ward, director, Manitoba board, N. F. Fletcher, secretary Manitoba board, Mr. Hinsdale, secretary British Columbia board and E. H. S. Winn, chairman British Columbia board. The object of the conference is to discuss various phases of the Workmen's Compensation Acts in their relationship to each other with the idea of bringing about a greater measure of uniformity. It is expected that the provinces of Quebec and Saskatchewan will shortly establish their boards, andground out this class of organization throughout Canada. The following officers were elected: President, John T. Stirling, of Edmonton; vice president, V. J. Paton, of Nova Scotia; secretary, W. S. Rose, of Edmonton, member of executive board, John Sinclair of New Brunswick.

An appointment which reflects considerable honor on Alberta has recently been made, when Dr. Orr, of the provincial health department was appointed chemical assistant to Dr. Sequeria of London, Eng., one of the world's most foremost specialists in the treatment of skin diseases.

Baffinland Expedition Successfully Concluded With Important Results

After more than a year in the Arctic wilderness of Baffinland, Donald B. MacMillan has returned south, having been reported at Sydney, Nova Scotia, on his way home to Portland, Maine. MacMillan is a well known polar explorer and an associate of Admiral Peary, who was first to reach the north pole. The expedition now drawing to a close, which is MacMillan's eighth voyage to the Arctic, appears to have been the most fruitful of recent years, though the time actually spent in the Arctic was short.

The "Bowdoin" a vessel specially fitted out for the expedition, left for the north two years ago. Last winter and the past spring and summer were spent frozen in the ice, and the party carried on an extensive program of exploration and research. The discoveries thus made will be of great value to the science of cartography, it is said, some of the territory traversed having never before been seen by white men. Besides geographical discoveries, new light has been thrown on the flora, geology and atmospheric conditions of the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions visited by the expedition.

MacMillan and his fellow voyagers were held ice bound in the Bowdoin for 274 days, but luckily escaped with no more injury than the memory of their enforced inaction. They found three islands hitherto unknown to Arctic explorers, and came upon enormous herds of walrus, "beyond question," in the words of the leader of the expedition, "the last remnant of the walrus herds to be found in the north today." In their winter quarters they carried on for ten months an uninterrupted observation of terrestial magnetism. Meteorological observations were taken during the entire year, and tidal observations for two months. Members of the party travelled in dog teams upward of 2,000 miles, through territory upon which white man had never before set foot. Valuable botanical and petrological collections were also made.

In an outline of his latest voyage sent by courier to Newfoundland, Mr. MacMillan describes the difficulties he encountered in trying to steer his course by means of the latest maps covering the territory he traversed. These maps not only took no cognizance of land that actually existed, but they indicated terra firma where there was nothing to see but the wide wide ocean. At one point, he declares "by their maps, we should have struck land," but they failed to do so. "We sailed over an area indicated as land on all the latest and most authoritative maps, and indeed 15 miles into a hypothetical interior." One result of the MacMillan expedition should be better and more reliable maps of Baffinland and the land and water adjacent.

The twelve mile extension of the Lacombe and Blindman Valley railway west of Lacombe will be completed in time to handle the crop this fall, it is stated.

Whole System Is Benefitted By Tanlac

Thousands of frail, nervous people and convalescents everywhere have testified to the remarkable power of Tanlac in bringing back their health strength and working efficiency. It seems to quickly invigorate the constitution and is a powerful foe of weakness. Mr. J. T. Willitt, a war veteran of Park Rooms, Pender St., Vancouver, B.C., says:

"After being in the hospital for wound and shell shock, I needed something to build me up. I was down to one hundred and twenty-three pounds.

"Tanlac built me up to one hundred and forty-five and I feel like pinching myself to see if I can really be the same man who was almost a wreck a few weeks ago."

There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefitted by the helpful action of Tanlac. It enables the stomach to turn the food into healthy blood, bone and muscle, purifies the system and helps you back to normal weight. Get a bottle today at any good druggist.

PALPITATION OF HEART SHORTNESS OF BREATH

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, skips beats; when there is shortness of breath, smothering and all-gone sinking sensation it causes great anxiety and alarm, but there is no need to worry; just take a few boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and see how quickly they will relieve you of your trouble.

Mrs. Alice Bishop, 15 Hawthorne Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I take pleasure in recommending Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to all persons troubled as I had been.

I suffered from palpitation of the heart and shortness of breath; my heart would skip beats, and in the night, at times, I would have to sit up to get my breath. I could not go upstairs without my heart fluttering, and my nerves were all unstrung. Doctors did not help me any, but since using your famous Pills I have felt like a different person."

DOCTORS SUCCESSFUL IN REPLACING A SCALP TORN FROM WOMAN

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 18—One of the most unique operations on record was performed by surgeons at a city hospital late yesterday when they replaced the scalp of Miss Marie Ahern, 32, when it was torn off by a machine. Miss Ahern's hair caught in a power shaft of a sewing machine and her scalp was completely torn off. Doctors, in a delicate operation, replaced it and said the operation apparently was successful.

An Episode In The Weinert Family

(By Edith M. Leavell)

"Edny! Ed-ny! O Ed-ny!" Ma Weinert was growing impatient. First at the stoop, then at the back door, she raised her voice in a shrill call for her youngest, but the youngest paid no heed. Finally, with a look of determination that was not unmixed with suspicion, she strode into her son Claudie's room, which was on the side of the house next to Mrs. Casey's. Up went the sash. "Edny! Ed-nee! O Ed-nee-ee-ee!"

If Edny were unaware of the last shriek there was no hope for her hearing. But she heard from the depths of Mrs. Casey's sitting room there came a reluctant "All right, ma" and after Ma Weinert had heard the opening and shutting of several doors, followed by lagging footsteps on Mrs. Casey's back porch, she at last beheld her daughter.

Ma was at Claudie's window, and Edny, who had crossed the unfenced space with quickening steps, now stood beneat hit.

"Why didn't you come when I called you?"

Edny tugged at the yellow pigtails hanging over her shoulders.

"You answer me! Why didn't you come when I called?"

"I—I did ma. I was coming——"

"Edny! Don't you tell me stories! Why didn't you answer me?"

The struggle to avoid her parent's eyes, which seemed to bore their way into her soul, was fast wearing on Edny's nerves. Involuntarily she replied to her mother's final loud question in a manner that was dangerously similar. "Cause I wasn't through."

"Through what?" demanded Ma Weinert. And after a pause she repeated. "Through whate Say!" she exclaimed. "Are you going to tell me why you didn't come. What were you doing? What wasn't you through with, Edny!" She shook her finger at her daughter. "Answer me!"

Now if a child continues to stand in front of her mother, making no response except sniffles to questions that are entirely unjustified, there is only one thing to do. "Well" announced Ma Weinert, falling back on a time honored formula, "if you're going to cry I'll give you something to cry for."

Edny hurried into the house, where, needless to say, a painful five minutes ensued. Possibly, if Ma Weinert had not been so thorough, she would have noticed something unusual in the way Edny cried; but Ma Weinert's thoroughness was a matter of maternal pride. When she was angry—this she had been known to confide to her neighbors—she was "mad all over."

So a long five minutes had passed before she became aware of the particularly heart broken appearance of her child.

Finding that unexplained effect of her activity somewhat exasperating, she paused with uplifted hand and in awful tones demanded once more to know "why"—or worse would follow.

The threat was more than a little round faced, chubby child could stand. To endure another spanking—worse or otherwise—after the one that she had just received was altogether too much. Though she all but wriggled out of her blue checked apron and almost tugged her yellow braids loose, she found breath to ward off her mother's impending hand. "I was helping to—get ready—for—for the party —s'sprise party."

"Whose s'prise party?" demanded Ma, still threatening.

"Yours!" the girl replied in a long wail of defeat and bitter disappointment.

"Mine!" Ma Weinert's hand fell to her side. After a speechless pause she found it possible to ask: "Who's getting it up?"

"I was," Edny's small voice answered tearfully. "It's your birthday."

Now, if Ma Weinert was thorough at retribution, she was by no means hard at heart; far from it. All that she said was: "And I've been whipping you." and, sinking into a rocking chair, she gave herself over to lamentations as Mrs. Casey must have heard if Claudie's window had not been viciously slammed down several minutes before. Edny, too, was far from silent though the unexpected balm for her bruised spirit had reduced her sobs to a mere accompaniment to her mother's demonstrations.

It was thus that Claudie found them when he came home shortly after the six o'clock whistle had blown. He came in at the back door and eating on 'em both."

Claudie continued to lean on the his dinner pail on the kitchen table, went hurriedly toward the disturbing sounds. "Well, I'll be—" he began, and his big brown eyes gave every sign of popping from his good-natured face. Rushing to his mother, he shook her by the shoulder. "Ma! stop. Stop it! Tell me quick! it is pa? Is he hurt?"

The unhappy suggestion of such a possibility, unfounded though it was, brought fresh wails from his mother, and Claudie's knees grew weak beneath him.

By that time Edny's fountains had almost run dry, and she was able to say concisely, if with sobs, "She whipped me—and made me tell—about tonight!"

"About the s'prise," Claudie's tone was stricken; he even failed to say that he was glad that pa was not hurt or killed. "Well, 'ill be jiggered!" he exclaimed, saying what he had meant to say in the first place. "Say, ma, stop! Ma! You didn't whip the kid."

"Yes, I did; I whipped her and beat her, and I'll never get over it as long as I live."

By that time Pa Weiner had come in the back door. Setting his dinner pail beside Claudie's, he hastened to the bedroom. Edny was calm now except for an occasional snuff-snuff, and her mother with her apron over her head was rocking nervously in a laudable effort ot control her emotions. Claudie explained to his father what had happened.

"Ma!" exclaimed Pa Weinert. "You never?"

"Yes, pa, I did, I whipped her. An' I know all about the s'prise. O, I'm such a fo-ool!" Then came a fresh flood of tears.

Wisely refraining from agreeing with his wife's last remark, Pa Weinert returned to the kitchen and, taking up the milk bucket, went outside.

Claudie turned to follow his father but for an instant the demands of a robust six foot body drove other tribulations from his mind. "Ain't you going to give us any supper, ma? I'm hungry," he called back.

"My soul!" cried ma. And what else indeed had interfered with supper?

But souls must wait when men folks come home hungry. Surprise or no surprise, pa and Claudie must have their meat and potatoes. But no potatoes were peeled, and no water was boiling! She was on the point of giving way to her emotions when Edny, still disconsolate, walked into the kitchen.

"Edny," said ma, in saccharine tone "don't you want to help your ma peel some potatoes so brother and pa can have a good supper?

Meanwhile Claudie had followed his father to the barn, and leaning over the top of a low door, was watching the warm milk stream into the bucket. He was so soft hearted, Claudie was, and he couldn't "get the kid out of his mind." I don't know when I've been so broken up over the kid," he said. "She's been workin' on this surprise for over a month, keepin' it from ma just as if she was growed up."

"Women folks," responded pa with feeling, "is too hasty."

Claudie was a good boy, but after the manner of sons he was apt to take issue with his father's opinions. "Why, pa, I don't see how you could say that Ma was to blame. She didn't know."

"I ain't blaming her," Pa said somewhat hastily. "Of course, as you say, she didn't know. Isuppose it's tough

Claudie continued to lean on the low door; he was busy with his thoughts even as Betsy was busy with her cud. But, suddenly, unlike Betsy, Claudie found himself in the ecstatic grip of an inspiration. A glow came into his face. "Listen, Pa," he cried. "Say! I've got an idea."

Pa waited, and Betsy, vaguely aware of something unusual, looked inquiringly around. Claudie sketched his plan rapidly in low tones. "And by doing that," he concluded, "we'll not only s'prise Ma, but the kid'll be so tickled that I feel mighty sure it'll make her eyes pop out."

"It's a good idea, all right," said pa and rose to his feet. "Here, you hold the bucket; Betsy might kick it over. It's a good idea if—Now let's see how much I've got—Fifty and fifty's a dollar—dollar seventy-five and ten—No, I haven't got it."

"Look in your other pocket, Pa."

When Pa Weinert has fished one more quarter from a capacious pocket Claudie became so excited that he spattered milk on his everyday trousers. "What'd I tell you, pa? With what I got it's a-plenty!"

Prudence dimmed the brightness of pa's blue eyes. "I don't know Claudie, I don't know as we'd oughta. I haven't paid that bill o' Flexner's yet. It's a good idea, all right, but I don't know as we c'n afford—"

But Claudie had the money and was on his way. "If I don't hurry, the stores'll be closed," he called back. "Say, Pa, you make up something to tell ma."

Now that prudence was put to rout Pa turned submissively back to his task and Betsy, and she looked round again and had she not been a cow, might have observed a grin of pleased anticipation on Pa's face.

That night at eight o'clock the Weinert family, washed and combed, not to say plastered, were sitting round in various attitudes of stiffness waiting for the surprise party to arrive. During the hour or more between supper and eight o'clock the nervous tension had not relaxed appreciably; rather, it must be admitted their strong family affection had suffered from an unaccustomed strain.

In the first place Ma was hurt because her grown son had lingered in the alley with the boys on that evening of all evenings; for that was the reason, pa had affirmed, after the manner of the proverbial trooper, why Claudie was late. She could not know that at seven o'clock her son had sprinted breathlessly down the alley with a carefully guarded box under his coat, that he had held a stealthy colloquy at Mrs. Casey's kitchen door, or that when he had given the package into that good neighbor's care Mrs. Casey had exclaimed, "Ain't you the best son now! It's a grand idea, Claudie, that's what it is." And when he came in late to supper that had turned cold and soggy ma's complainings might soon have changed to tears except for her husband's soothing words of caution: "Now, ma, don't go and git yourself all worked up again."

There was further occasion for husbandly diplomacy when ma started to change her dress for the party.

"Ma," Edny lamented, "if you go and change your dress, they'll just know you know!"

"I can't help it. They ain't goin' to see me in this old calliker dress. And anyway I can't act s'prised when I ain't s'prised. You know I can't, Edny; I ain't made that way."

"Aw, Ma!" Claudie pleaded from the doorway.

"It'll just be an old fizzle, Ma," exclaimed her sorely tried daughter.

It was then that Pa became inspired. Quietly and ostentatiously he turned up the big hand of the kitchen clock. "It's two minutes to eight ma, ain't no time for you to dress, anyway. Git your darning an' set down as if you never suspected anything."

After a long five minutes Ma said: "Now, you see I'd have had plenty of time to dress. I'm going now; they will be late. I am going! This dress—"

"Sh-h-h" Claudie warned her excitedly. "I hear 'em coming now"

Another long spell of waiting followed Claudie's words, and all the while only the united family will kept Ma Weinert in her chair.

Then at last was a stealthy step outside, then another and yet another until every board in the porch seemed to creak with its secret.

"My soul! I can't!" Ma began nervously.

A sharp knock interrupted her; the door swung open, and Edny's kind confederates trooped in. Each was red with suppressed giggles, and each bore a paper bag or a box from which came the delicate odor of pickles, ham sandwiches and jelly cake.

Ma's painfully embarrassed silence served as an excellent counterfeit for amazement as the neighborhood humorist began. "Well, Mis' Weinert, ain't you goin' to ask us to stay awhile? We thought we'd come and pay you a call." The witticism released the pent-up merriment of the callers and hearty peals of laughter followed.

Apparently, however, Mrs. Casey was the real mistress of ceremonies. "Don't you let 'em set down yet, Mis' Weinert," she said, clearing her dry throat importantly. "Mis' Weinert, I have here—I wish to present to you a—a token! I ain't saying what it is, nor I ain't informing you where it came from. Maybe somebody who shall be nameless give it to me to give to you. Be that as it may, Mis' Weinert, as I was saying we now give you on this here glad day this token and, and—and—our best respects—and happy returns, Mis' Weinert."

"Happy returns," echoed the others.

Mrs. Casey awkwardly held out the gift.

Behold now the box that had been hidden under Claudie's coat as he had sprinted down the alley; behold fifteen kindly faces rosily grinning as they watched Ma's fingers struggling with the wrappings. Finally there came into view an elegant toilet box all lovely red outside and beautiful pale blue within; it contained a comb and brush and mirror with flowered backs and handles exactly like silver.

Above the hubbub of enthusiasm Ma's voice rose, high pitcher, and tense: "Well, I am surprised! Why, I just declare to mercy, folks, I am surprised!"

At that her husband, who was bent as nearly double as his round body would allow, might have been heard to break into loud guffaws of laughter. But Claudie was silent; from his place by the kitchen door he was watching a shy little figure standing apart from the noisy group of friends. Edny's lips were tremulous, but her eyes were full of astonished joy. Claudie's own eyes grew tender as he looked. "Sh-h," he whispered, nudging his father. "Look, pa, Look at the kid!"

Is Fined For Using A Previously Used Stamp

Charles Siddon, of Olds, posted a letter at Eckville stamped with a previously used stamp. He was taken before D. Clausen, J.P., at Eckville, and fined $15. The department is determined to put a stop to this practice, which is getting quite prevalent, and will prosecute each offender.

Representatives of the Alberta Dairymen's association and the express companies are to negotiate on a scale of charges for hauling three gallon cream cans, and if they cannot arrive at a satisfactory basis the board of railway commissioners will set the charges.

LORD BYNG REFUSES GIFT OF TWO SQUAWS

Edmonton, Sept. 15.—Lord Byng had two buxom and youthful Indian squawettes, or what one calls Cree 'flappers' presented to him here Wednesday by Chief Ermine Skin, when he was made Chief Buffalo Head of the Bob Tail Indians of the Hobbema reserve. The presentation of the dusky belles took place at the fair grounds before a vast throng of pale faces and 450 Cree Indians in full festive regalia.

Chief Buffalo Head Byng, apparently highly embarrassed, accepted the ladies, but left them in the care of Chief Ermine Skin with the hope that they would find braves worthy of them.

Lord Byng was also presented with a giant mounted buffalo head from the herd at Wainwright park, with moccasins, cloaks and a dozen articles of Indian work.

BILIOUS ATTACKS DULL HEADACHES

When the liver becomes sluggish and inactive the bowels become constipated, the tongue becomes coated, the stomach foul and sick and dull bilious headaches occur.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will clean the coated tongue and foul stomach, and banish the disagreeable bilious headache.

Mr. Charles Murray, 260 Hamilton Road, London, Ont., writes:—"After trying a great many remedies for bilious attacks, which caused many days of dull headaches and miserable feelings, I tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and now feel like a new creature. We keep them on hand all the time, and find it beneficial to take an occasional dose, as they clear up the liver and make one feel like living."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WEDDINGS

BENZ — SCHMIDT

On the 12th instant a beautiful wedding took place at the Lutheran Zion church, when Walter Herman Benz and Miss Ottilia Alvina Schmidt became man and wife, the Rev. C. Thies officiating. The marriage service was opened by the marching in of the bridal couple and their attendants to the strains of Lohengrin. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marie Schmidt, while Mr. Emmerling stood as groomsman. After the ceremony the party motored to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schmidt, west of the city. There a table loaded with only the best, had been prepared and good efforts were put forth by all to do full justice to the beautiful wedding supper. The evening was pleasantly spent by the younger set, assisted by some of the older ones, who still felt young in playing of games.

The happy couple departed the following day on an extended tour through southern Alberta and some of the western states.

HIGH TARIFF STICKS IN UNITED STATES

Any last hope that there would be a relaxation of the American tariff against Canadian farm products has gone glimmering. The administration tariff bill which replaces both the Fordney emergency tariff and the Underwood tariff has been finally settled in conference between the Senate and the House of Reresentatives and now only awaits thep signature of President Harding to become effective. The new tariff is out-and-out protective and extends pretty completely over every department of agricultural and industrial activity.

Some of the rates fixed which are of importance to Canada are:

Cattle from 1 1-2 to 2c per lb.
Sheep, $2 per head.
Hogs 1-2c per lb.
Pork, bacon, etc., from 1-2 to 2c per lb.

Butter and butter substitutes, 8c a lb.

Cheese and cheese substitutes, 5c per lb.

Live poultry, 3c per lb.
Dead poultry, 8c per lb.
Eggs, 8c per dozen.

Horses, according to valuation, from 30 specific duty to 20 per cent ad valorem duty.

Fish, fresh, 2c per lb.
Fish, pickled or salted, 1c per lb.
Barley, 20c per bushel.
Oats, 15c per bushel.
Wheat, 30c per bushel.
Rye, 15c per bushel.
Wheat flour, 75c per 100lbs.

This list covers the greater part of the exportable agricultural products of Canada. Its effect is prohibitive and the United States as a Canadian market is practically eliminated.

The Willing Workers of Knox Presbyterian church will hold their third quarterly tea in the Sunday school rooms on Friday, Sept. 29th, from 4 to 6 o'clock. All ladies are cordially invited.

Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Robertson returned Wednesday morning from their trip to the east. They took the boat trip down the St. Lawrence as far as the City of Quebec.

A number of the members of Victory Chapter, O.E.S., intend going to Ponoka on Thursday evening of this week, the occasion being the official visit of the Worthy Grand Matron to the lodge there.

The host of friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wells regret to hear that their infant daughter is very seriously ill with summer complaint. Everything possible is being done, and it is sincerely hoped that the young life may be spared.

R. M. Snyder has disposed of his radio outfit to Kenneth Montgomery, who is now enjoying the service given by the stations located at Edmonton, Calgary, Regina and Vancouver. Mr. Snyder has purchased a more powerful radio, which he hopes to have installed shortly.

Looking Backward
FROM THE TIMES' FILES

(Sept. 18, 1902)

W. A. Howard, of Harlem, Mont., this week purchased the McKeever property north of town, also the Ireland ranch at Bittern Lake.

Mrs. Tomlin, sr., met with a painful accident while tying a horse. The animal jerked the rope and she had the flesh of her thumb badly lacerated.

W. J. McNamara & Co. moved their real estate office to the new Bossange block this week.

A. S. Rosenroll moved his office from the Imperial Bank building to the new office on Monday.

A bridge is being built across the creek on Railway street near the creamery.

Eggleston & Barnhill are having their livery, feed and sale stable moved to the rear of their lots prior to the erection of a large annex.

During the month of August the Edmonton land office made 205 homestead entries and received 52 applications for patent.

The C.P.R. seems to be making an attempt to put the C.&E. line into something like proper condition.

The Wetaskiwin Fair will be held on October 15th.

Last winter sixty fishing licenses were granted for Pigeon Lake, and on Wednesday Simon Fraser took a hundred fish from his nets set at the lake.

(Sept. 19, 1912)

The council passed a resolution providing for a ten cent rate to all users of electric flat irons in the city. Miss Swanson and W. M. Beairsto were engaged as assistants in the city office. It was also recommended that the firemen take down the brick chimney at the power house.

The city won all the appeal cases with the exception of a few lots, which were slightly reduced.

Nels Linden and Geo. H Taylor won a number of poultry prizes at the Leduc fair.

A quarrel took place among the Italians working on the C.P.R. at Gwynne and as a result one is in the Wetaskiwin hospital with a broken jaw.

At a meeting of the Board of Trade executive, the resignation of M. M. Gillis, publicity commissioner, was accepted.

Wetaskiwin flocked to the Bijou theatre Friday night for the concert given by the young people of the Baptist church. The proceeds amounted to $75.00.

V. C. Brown, superintendent of the western branches of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, accompanied by a distinguished party of westerners, arrived in Wetaskiwin by special train on Sunday. After a drive through the district, which had been arranged by H. I. Millar, the local manager, they departed loud in their praises of Wetaskiwin and its substantial and progressive appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Fowler left for the east on Friday night's train, the former going to Toronto to attend the general conference of the Methodist church, while the latter will visit with relatives in Winnipeg. They expect to be away about a month.

Mrs. S. D. Bidinger and granddaughter, Miss Irene Toreson, left on Saturday for Minneapolis and other places in the States. The former will spend the winter with relatives there, while Miss Toreson will return in a few weeks.

Miss Gay, a returned missionary from China, will give an address in the Sunday school rooms of Knox church on Monday afternoon, Sept. 25th, at four o'clock. Everyone interested in missionary work will be made welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. John Berry returned the fore part of the week, after taking a pleasure and prospecting trip through the mountains, and down the Okanagan Valley. They report having had a delightful time, and met a number of people who formerly resided in the Wetaskiwin district.

The illuminated address presented to His Excellency Governor General Byng on his visit to Wetaskiwin, was the work of an Edmonton lady, Miss Mary McAnnally, who is one of the separate school teachers. It was beautifully done in early English style, in black and gold lettering with the family coat of arms of the governor general on the top and border of Canadian maple leaves and other emblems.

DYBERG—At Malmo, on the 16th inst., to Mr. and Mrs. Mons Dyberg, a son.

ROSENROLL—At Edmonton, on the 15th inst., to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rosenroll, of Ferintosh, a son.

W. C. T. U.

In Canada, while the wet provinces of Quebec and B.C. have largely neutralized the percentage, if we go back to pre war days and compare convictions in 1914-1921 we find it works out to a reduction of 18 per cent for indictable offences, 13 per cent for non-indictable offences, and 42 per cent for drunkenness in eight years, while the increase in population for the last ten years is 21.95 per cent.

COMMUNICATION

(We do not necessarily endorse the sentiments advanced by this or any other correspondent under this heading.—Ed.)

The Editor,
Dear Sir:

In regard to the correction which appeared in The Times recently, stating that the winner of the U.F.A. Baseball Trophy had not yet been decided, we wish to state that as far as the Hurd Lake baseball team is concerned, the winner has been decided.

The game which was played on Aug. 30th, was advertised as the championship game and the Hurd Lake team played under that understanding.

Hurd Lake Baseball Team,
C. Craig, Mgr.
